NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I struggle to reflect on who I am when prompted. As a result, I struggle to articulate what my strengths, values, passions, interests, sense of identity are. :: I struggle to describe what children need and the roles I can play towards ed-equity. :: I have a limited understanding of my theory of change and usually make choices aligned to my immediate interests.	:: I reflect on who I am when prompted. As a result, I can briefly articulate what my strengths, values, passions, interests and sense of identity are. :: I can briefly describe what children need and the roles I need to play to realize ed-equity. :: I begin to explore my theory of change through my learning, experiences and reflection and sometimes make choices aligned to it.	:: I reflect on who I am becoming. As a result, I can articulate what my strengths, values, passions, interests, sense of identity are and enquire into where they come from. :: I can describe what children need, the stakes involved, and have an evolving understanding of various formal/ informal roles that I need to play as part of a collective to realize ed-equity. :: Anchored in this understanding, I evolve my theory of change and make choices aligned to it.	:: I periodically reflect on who I am becoming. As a result, I can articulate what my strengths, values, passions, interests, sense of identity are and where they come from. :: I can describe what children need, the stakes & urgency involved, and various formal/ informal roles that I need to play as part of a collective to realize ed-equity. I support others to do the same. :: Anchored in this deep understanding, I evolve my theory of change with conviction and make conscious, consistent choices aligned to it.
Reflective Questions :: What is my best understanding of my 'self' and the 'education' system? :: How may I develop an evolving theory that brings my awareness of my 'self' and the 'system' together, to clarify my role in realizing educational equity, in the most effective way possible?

I create safe spaces to listen to my people and immerse myself in their context.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: In spaces, I rarely listen to my people or often only to respond. I form judgements based on what I hear. :: I display limited interest in learning about lived experiences of my people. :: I am uncomfortable or unaware when situations of conflict arise.	:: In available spaces, I listen to my people and share. I sometimes struggle to do so without judgement. :: I ask simple or surface-level questions about lived experiences of my people. :: I am aware of conflict when it arises, and I intentionally divert attention away from it.	:: I create structured spaces mostly free of judgement to listen and sometimes share authentically. :: I ask complex or deep questions about the lived experiences of my people and seek out answers to these questions. :: I acknowledge conflict when it arises, and stay positively engaged in resolving it.	:: I leverage most available and self-created interactions with my people to listen deeply and share authentically and vulnerably. I support others to create safe spaces. :: I ask complex or deep questions about the lived experiences of my people. As a result, I can articulate a deep understanding of their strengths and the inequity they face. :: I address conflict directly, positively and constructively, helping to resolve it in a way that strengthens relationships and builds mutual understanding.
Reflective Questions :: Which voices do I need to listen to? :: How do I operate in spaces – how do I listen? :: When and how can I create space for my people to be heard? :: What am I learning about my people through these spaces towards building stronger relationships?

I reflect on my biases and their impact on my relationships.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I display limited awareness of the biases I have and the experiences/identities that have shaped them. :: I display limited awareness of how my biases subconsciously affect my choices and their impact on my relationships. :: I do not attempt to suspend judgement in my relationships with self and others.	:: I can name some of the biases I have and the experiences/identities that have shaped them. I can articulate their impact on my relationships. :: I display limited interest in understanding new ways of thinking, sometimes seeking out information that validates and reinforces my biases. :: I sometimes struggle suspend judgement in my relationships with self and others.	:: I can articulate multiple biases I have, where they stem from and the impact that they have on my relationships. :: I am open to engaging in experiences and asking questions that will help me challenge my biases and understand new ways of thinking. :: I am mostly able to suspend judgement in my relationships with self and others.	:: I can articulate multiple biases I have, where they stem from and notice how they influence my worldview. I can anticipate their potential impact on my relationships. :: I consistently take action to explore the opposite of my biases. I support others to challenge their own biases. :: I am mostly able to suspend judgement in my relationships with self and others.
Reflective Questions :: How have my experiences and identities shaped my view of myself, of others and of the system? :: How curious am I to explore different perspectives? :: What would change about my relationships if my perspective shifted?

I analyze data and research to unpack systemic causes behind inequity and learning gaps.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I sometimes participate in existing structures and experiences to get to know the community better. I make assumptions about the challenges that exist in the community. :: I (theoretically) know that the context of the community impacts the learning and behaviour of my immediate stakeholders, but have a limited understanding of how and why.	:: I engage in surface-level research and supplement my experiences to understand the challenges, beliefs, and relationships that exist in the community. I enquire into the root causes of these realities. :: I can briefly describe the impact of these realities on the learning and behaviour of my immediate stakeholders.	:: I engage in research and analyze my experiences to understand the strengths, challenges, beliefs, and relationships that exist in the community. I enquire into the socio-economic, cultural, and political factors underlying these realities. :: I can describe the direct impact that these realities have on the learning and behaviour of my immediate stakeholders.	:: I proactively immerse myself in the community's context through experiences and research. I understand the socio-economic, cultural and political histories, strengths and realities within the community in order to unpack the dynamics of power, privilege and oppression. :: I can describe the direct and indirect impact of these realities on the learning and behaviour of my immediate stakeholders. I view my immediate sphere of impact as a microcosm of the system.
Reflective Questions :: What am I learning about the context of the communities that I work with and the impact of this context on my stakeholders? :: What are the key barriers that limit my stakeholders' progress? :: What are the strengths that propel them forward?

I influence a collective towards wider and deeper impact.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I work independently and rarely accept support when it is offered. :: I direct the support that is offered towards solving challenges that are most evident/visible.	:: I leverage existing relationships, occasionally building new ones towards influencing immediate and incremental change. :: I direct support from these relationships towards solving challenges that are most urgent/pressing.	:: I leverage existing relationships, proactively building new ones towards influencing immediate and incremental change. :: I organize support from these relationships to drive sustainable impact towards a shared vision and goals.	:: I strategically identify and rally a wide variety of individuals leveraging their strengths towards transformative and sustainable change. :: I co-create ways to drive deep impact that multiplies/sustains beyond my presence towards a shared vision and goals.
Reflective Questions :: Who are my allies in this movement? :: How do I organize them to operate as a collective? :: How might I build ownership in this collective to widen and deepen their impact?

ENVISION

E1

I develop an evolving vision of transformation that challenges the status quo.

E2

I bring together relevant stakeholders to create a vision.

E3

I develop an understanding of the kind of leader I am called to be.

E4

I co-create clear, audacious, holistic goals aligned to the vision.

E5

I communicate the vision in a clear and compelling way to foster partnership.

I develop an evolving vision of transformation that challenges the status quo.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I am unable to describe what transformation would look like, in my immediate sphere of influence. :: I struggle to articulate barriers to this transformation. :: I struggle to find solutions to overcome these barriers.	:: I can briefly describe what transformation looks like, in my immediate sphere of influence. :: I can vaguely articulate barriers to this transformation. :: I can cite some solutions to overcome these barriers.	:: I can describe what transformation looks like, in my immediate sphere of influence. :: I can articulate barriers to this transformation and I determine multiple points of leverage to overcome these barriers. :: I can cite solutions aligned to these points of leverage that have been effective/ineffective.	:: I can describe with conviction what transformation looks like, in my extended sphere of influence. I support others to develop a vision for transformation. :: I can clearly articulate barriers to this transformation and I determine the key levers that would most strategically overcome these barriers. :: I can cite solutions aligned to these key levers that have been effective/ineffective. I creatively find new solutions, where necessary.

Reflective Questions

- :: What would transformation look like in our context?
- :: What are the barriers that currently limit us from realizing this transformation?
- :: What have we learnt about the solutions that work in the face of these barriers and those that don't?

I bring together relevant stakeholders to create a vision.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I independently create a vision for my immediate stakeholders, without sharing it with them. :: My vision for my immediate stakeholders is based on my assumptions of what they need.	:: I create a vision for my immediate stakeholders and communicate the same to them to invest them. :: I use limited research and local information on hand or readily accessible to develop the vision. My vision is contextual to the needs of my immediate stakeholders.	:: I co-create a vision for my immediate stakeholders by involving some of my immediate and extended stakeholders through discussion and feedback. :: I use sufficient research and local information to develop a vision that is contextual and transformative for my immediate stakeholders.	:: I enable the generation and ownership of a shared vision for my immediate stakeholders through dialogue and thought-partnership with all relevant stakeholders. I support others to do the same. :: I actively seek out relevant research and obtain varied local information to develop a vision that is a strong balance of being contextual and transformative for my immediate & extended stakeholders.
Reflective Questions :: What is my approach to co-creating a vision for my stakeholders? :: What are the various factors I need to consider while developing this vision so that it is contextual yet transformative?

I develop an understanding of the kind of leader I am called to be.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I rarely think of who I am called to be in order to deliver on my immediate goals. :: I am sometimes uncomfortable with actions aligned to these intentions that seem to be in conflict with who I consider myself to be.	:: With support, I can articulate who I am called to be, in service of my classroom/ outcomes with support. :: I am exploring actions aligned to these intentions to meet the immediate needs of my stakeholders. :: I am beginning to practice some of the actions aligned to these intentions.	:: I can independently articulate who I am called to be, in service of the vision for my classroom, school, or community/ outcomes. :: I often contextualize my actions based on these intentions to meet the diverse and dynamic needs of my stakeholders. :: I am committed to practicing the actions aligned to these intentions.	:: I can independently articulate with conviction who I am called to be, in service of our vision for all children. I can support others to do the same. :: I consistently contextualize my actions based on these intentions to meet the diverse and dynamic needs of my stakeholders. :: I am committed to practicing the actions that aligned with these intentions and evolve my understanding of the kind of leader I am called to be.
Reflective Questions :: What our evolving vision for the children we serve? :: What kind of leaders are we called to be in service of this vision? :: What actions would we practice to bring this leadership to life everyday?

I co-create clear, audacious, holistic goals aligned to the vision.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I independently create goals for my immediate stakeholders, often with a limited understanding of what my stakeholders' goals are for themselves and without sharing it with them. :: I adopt a generic set of goals that are relevant to my context. :: I struggle to articulate how the achievement of set goals would lead to the vision.	:: I communicate my high expectations with my immediate stakeholders and share goals with all stakeholders once they are finalized. :: I set generic goals that are feasible and ambitious keeping in mind the average of where my stakeholders are. :: I can vaguely articulate how the achievement of set goals would lead to the vision.	:: I engage with my immediate stakeholders on their expectations for outcomes. I use this information to develop goals with them, share these goals with all relevant stakeholders and explain why these goals matter. :: I co-create specific goals that are feasible, holistic, and ambitious for different buckets of individuals, keeping in mind diagnostic data and observed evidence. :: I can articulate how the achievement of set goals would lead to the vision.	:: I have personal conversations with my stakeholders to discuss what their short and long-term goals are. I integrate these with my goals, in partnership with all relevant stakeholders. :: I co-create specific goals that are feasible, holistic, and ambitious for every individual keeping in mind diagnostic data and observed evidence. I support others to do the same. :: I can articulate how the achievement of set goals would lead to the vision.
Reflective Questions :: How do I break down the vision for my stakeholders into clear, audacious, and holistic goals? :: What are factors I need to consider while creating these goals for every individual? :: How do I communicate the connection between our vision and these goals?

I communicate the vision in a clear and compelling way to foster partnership.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I have a limited understanding of my audience(s). :: I present a set of possibilities that somewhat resonate with my audience. :: I do not solicit any engagement with the vision, from my audience.	:: I understand the diversity of my audience(s) and am beginning to connect with them through my communication. :: I present a narrative of the vision that leaves my audience informed. :: I extend an invitation for my audience to further engage with the vision.	:: I acknowledge the diversity of my audience(s), and authentically connect with them through my communication. :: I present a coherent narrative of the vision filled with truth and hope, that leaves my audience informed and inspired. :: I put forth a variety of ways/ideas for my audience to further engage with the vision.	:: I deeply value the diversity of my audience(s), authentically connect with them and differentiate my communication to their needs. :: I present a coherent narrative of the vision that paints a picture of a new reality leaving my audience informed, inspired, and driven. :: I actively mobilize my audience towards the vision.
Reflective Questions :: How well do I understand the audience that I intend to communicate to? :: What do I want my audience to feel/do at the end of my presentation? :: How do I build a narrative around my vision that will actively mobilize my audience towards it?

PLAN

I develop clear monitoring and evaluation tools to measure progress to goals.

P2

I design a culture that enables strong processes and outcomes.

P3

I design a variety of aligned, logically sequenced tasks to meet goals set.

P4

I manage resources effectively.

P5

I can anticipate breakdowns and plan for contingencies.

I develop clear monitoring and evaluation tools to measure progress to goals

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I design checks for progress at irregular intervals that are not scaffolded, rigorous, aligned, or reliable, and that gives me a limited picture of my progress to goals. :: I design/source primarily one tool/method that gives me limited understanding of progress to goals.	:: I design checks for progress at regular intervals that are somewhat scaffolded, rigorous, reliable, and/or aligned and give me some insight into the group's progress to goals. :: I design/ source more than one tool/method to attain a basic understanding of my progress on some quantitative and qualitative goals set.	:: I design checks for progress at regular intervals that are scaffolded, rigorous, reliable, and aligned and give my stakeholders and me an accurate picture of a representative subset's progress to goals and potential breakdowns. :: I design/source a variety of tools and methods to attain/give us a holistic gauge of our progress on almost every qualitative and quantitative goal set.	:: I design checks for progress that are strategically placed, scaffolded, rigorous, reliable, and aligned. These consistently give my stakeholders and me an accurate picture of every individual's progress to goals and direction to course correct in the most effective manner. :: I design/source tools and methods that are best suited to give us a holistic gauge of our progress on every qualitative and quantitative goal. I support others to do the same.
Reflective Questions :: How often do I check my progress to goals? :: What is the type, quality, and transparency of the tools I use to measure progress? :: What is the level of clarity my tools/methods give me on my progress to goals?

I design a culture that enables strong processes and outcomes.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I design a culture that considers the limited context of the group and where some stakeholders feel physically and emotionally safe. :: I design structures and procedures that are led by me. :: I design structures that rarely delegate tasks to some stakeholders towards supporting the group.	:: I design a culture that considers the context of the group and where most stakeholders will feel physically and emotionally safe, included, and loved. :: I design time-saving structures and procedures that are mostly led by me and that somewhat drive towards outcomes. :: I design structures that delegate tasks to some stakeholders towards supporting the group.	:: I design a culture that considers the context of groups of stakeholders and where every stakeholder will feel physically and emotionally safe, included, and loved. :: I design structures and procedures that will build values, make effective use of instructional time and most effectively drive towards outcomes. :: I co-design structures to effectively support some stakeholders to identify the role they will play towards contributing to the learning and growth of the group.	:: I co-design a culture that is deeply rooted in the context of most stakeholders and where every stakeholder will feel physically and emotionally safe, included, and loved. :: I co-design seamless structures and procedures that will build critical values, maximize the use of instructional time and most effectively drive towards outcomes. :: I co-design and customize structures to effectively support every stakeholder to identify the unique role they will play towards the empowerment of their peers and community.
Reflective Questions :: What am I considering as I design culture and what may this lead to? :: How will I make the best use of time and drive towards outcomes? :: What is the role each stakeholder will play and how will they get here?

I design a variety of aligned, logically sequenced tasks to meet goals set.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I do not research but access some existing opportunities with limited effectiveness to gain partial knowledge and clarity on my inputs. :: I design tasks that are somewhat aligned and logical, are not based on data analysis, do not consider the roles of stakeholders, and are paced somewhat appropriately. :: I do not make an attempt to differentiate content/methods or check for progress.	:: I engage in surface-level research and access some opportunities, towards having basic knowledge and some clarity on my inputs. :: I design tasks that are somewhat aligned and logical, based on data analysis, that consider the role of a few stakeholders and are mostly appropriately paced, such that stakeholders partially meet outcomes. :: I design differentiated content, methods, and/or checks for progress that cater to some of the needs of the group.	:: I research and access existing opportunities to deepen my knowledge and upskill myself towards gaining clarity on my inputs. :: I design tasks that are aligned, logical, based on data analysis, that consider the role of groups of stakeholders, and are appropriately paced, such that stakeholders meet outcomes. :: I design differentiated content, methods, and/or checks for progress that effectively cater to the needs/strengths of groups of stakeholders.	:: I research effectively and create opportunities to deepen my knowledge and upskill myself towards gaining a high level of clarity on my inputs. :: I design optimal tasks that are aligned, logical, and customized, based on data analysis, that considers the role of every stakeholder and is paced in a way that maximizes the use of time, such that most stakeholders meet/exceed outcomes. :: I design differentiated content, methods, and /or checks for progress that are best suited to cater to the diverse needs/strengths of every stakeholder.

Reflective Questions

- :: How am I gaining knowledge and clarity on my inputs?
- :: What do I consider as I design tasks to meet goals - what is the role that data, time, and stakeholders play?
- :: Who are these tasks catering to?

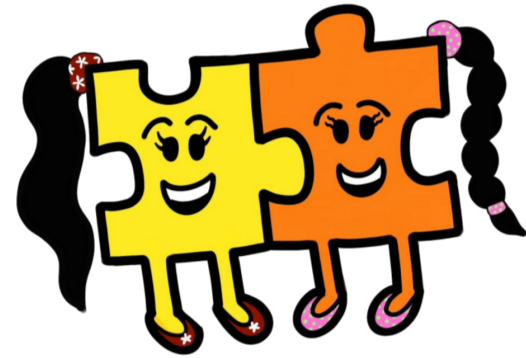

I manage resources effectively.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I make assumptions about the resources that are needed to meet outcomes. :: I can plan ways to utilize available resources with limited effectiveness. I sometimes struggle to get things done because I feel I do not have the required resources.	:: I refer to examples to become aware of some of the resources that are needed to most likely meet outcomes. :: I am able to plan ways to utilize resources with moderate effectiveness. I plan to use available resources only.	:: I conduct a needs analysis which is quantitative and qualitative to become aware of most of the resources that are needed to meet outcomes. :: I am able to come up with effective ways to utilize resources. I plan to use available resources and source/create resources wherever necessary.	:: I conduct a thorough needs analysis to become aware of all the resources that are needed to meet/exceed outcomes. :: I am able to come up with highly effective and creative ways to maximize the utility of resources. I plan to use available resources and source or create resources wherever necessary.
Reflective Questions :: How do I determine the resources required for every task/situation? :: What actions do I take in ensuring access to these resources? :: How do I make use of the resources available?

I can anticipate breakdowns and plan for contingencies.

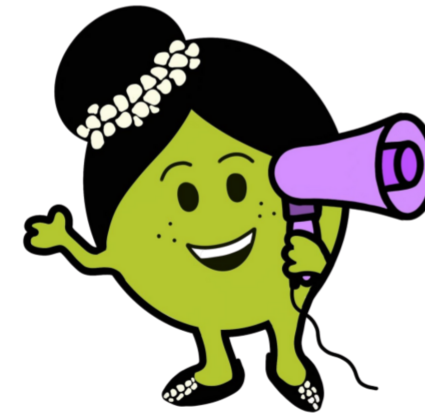

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I am able to predict a few minor breakdowns in my plan based on intuition. I avoid making any changes to the plan to prevent these breakdowns. :: I am unable to gauge the impact of these changes on outcomes and on stakeholders involved.	:: I am able to predict most of the minor breakdowns in my plan based on a surface-level analysis of data. I plan for a basic alternative to most likely meet outcomes. :: I am able to gauge the impact of the breakdowns and contingencies on outcomes and on stakeholders involved.	:: I am able to predict a few critical breakdowns in my plan based on strong analysis of data. I plan logically for some relevant alternate scenarios towards meeting my goals. :: I am able to gauge the impact of the breakdowns and contingencies on the outcomes and stakeholders involved and consider their thoughts as I plan.	:: I am able to predict most of the critical breakdowns in my plan based on a strong analysis of data and trends. I plan logically for various relevant scenarios towards meeting my goals effectively. :: I am able to gauge the impact of the breakdowns and contingencies on the outcomes and stakeholders involved and actively involve their thoughts in the planning process.
Reflective Questions :: How well does my plan accommodate for uncertainties? :: How do my actions and inputs vary according to the situations at present? :: What do I do to ensure that everyone involved is considered before acting?

EXECUTE

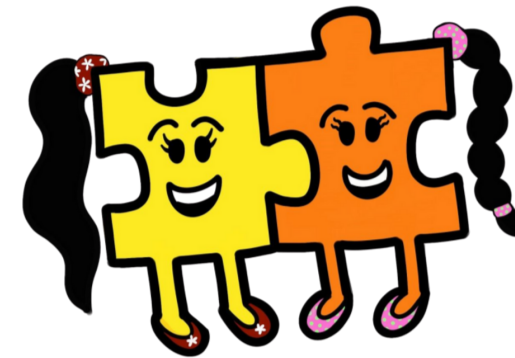

X1

I create a culture of joy, collaboration and high performance.

X2

I communicate content, instructions and purpose in a clear and compelling way.

X3

I facilitate actions that enable stakeholders to meet their outcomes.

X4

I check for progress at key stages and provide feedback.

X5

I address challenges and leverage opportunities that arise in the moment.

I create a culture of joy, collaboration and high performance.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I sometimes set up structures and procedures, but struggle to explain the same clearly to stakeholders.	:: I set up and clearly reinforce time-saving structures and procedures. These are managed almost entirely by me.	:: I set up structures and procedures that maximize time and build critical values. These are sometimes managed by stakeholders.	:: I set up structures and procedures that maximize time, build critical values, and are co-created, driven, and managed almost entirely by stakeholders.
:: I inconsistently track and share growth on outcomes and communicate high expectations through execution.	:: I track and celebrate growth on outcomes and effectively hold stakeholders accountable to high expectations, reinforcing the same immediately when I observe breakdowns.	:: I execute structures for stakeholders to track and celebrate their individual growth. As a result, stakeholders take ownership of their work and hold themselves accountable to high expectations.	:: I execute structures for stakeholders to track and celebrate individual/ collective growth and success. As a result, stakeholders take ownership of their work and hold each member accountable to high expectations.
:: I inconsistently set and communicate norms and values that enable stakeholders to display respect for one another.	:: I set and consistently reinforce norms and values that teach stakeholders how to display respect for one another, but may not foster a sense of belonging.	:: I set and communicate norms and values that promote safety, respect, and learning. I facilitate experiences/rituals for stakeholders to build safe and meaningful connections with one another.	:: I co-create norms and values that promote safety, respect, and learning. I facilitate experiences for stakeholders to deeply connect with one another, fostering a sense of belonging and community.
:: I display behavior and observable actions that are sometimes in conflict with the culture we want to create.	:: In some situations, I display behavior and observable actions that align with the culture we want to create.	:: In most situations, I display behavior and observable actions that serve as strong examples for the culture we want to create.	:: Even in the most challenging situations, I embody our cultural norms and values through my behavior and through observable actions.

Reflective Questions

- :: How do I set up a culture that is co-created, rooted in outcomes, celebrates growth, and withstands challenging situations?
- :: How do I co-create norms and values that enable stakeholders to connect and collaborate with each other?
- :: How are stakeholders held accountable?

I communicate content, instructions and purpose in a clear and compelling way.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I seldom convey the relevance or articulate the purpose behind tasks/ activities that stakeholders engage in.	:: I clearly communicate the purpose behind the tasks/ activities that stakeholders engage in. I make connections to their lives to make tasks relevant.	:: I hook stakeholders to the task at hand, making connections to their lives and drawing on prior knowledge/ experience to engage them and capture their interest.	:: I hook stakeholders to the task at hand, making connections to their lives, drawing on prior knowledge/ experience, and posing intriguing questions that spark curiosity.
:: I present content and instructions in a confusing and sometimes inaccurate manner, using language that is unclear/ incoherent or disrespectful.	:: I generally present content and instructions in a clear and accurate manner, using language that is accessible to more than half of the stakeholders present.	:: I consistently present content and instructions logically, coherently, and accurately in a manner that considers the age and cultural orientation of most stakeholders.	:: I consistently and effectively present content and instructions logically, coherently, and accurately in a manner that is both age and culturally appropriate to all stakeholders.
:: I maintain a tone, pace, volume, poise, and body language that is able to capture the attention of a few stakeholders.	:: I maintain adequate tone, pace, volume, poise, and body language well enough to capture the attention of more than half the stakeholders present.	:: I maintain an effective tone, pace, volume, poise, and body language well enough to grab the interest of most stakeholders as I communicate.	:: I maintain a persuasive and compelling tone, pace, volume, poise, and body language well enough to captivate all stakeholders as I communicate.
:: I spend a significant portion of my time communicating ideas and instructions. Stakeholders are mostly passive participants in the space.	:: I attempt to balance out the time I spend communicating and listening in any space. I provide a few opportunities for stakeholder voice to be heard.	:: I balance out the time I spend communicating and listening in any space. I provide multiple, varied opportunities for stakeholder voice to be heard.	:: I make intentional choices about when to share information when to question, when to listen and when to prioritize stakeholder's voice.

Reflective Questions

- :: How may I make the tasks at hand interesting and engaging?
- :: How clear, coherent, respectful and captivating is my communication and body language?
- :: Am I being intentional about when I choose to speak and when I choose to prioritize stakeholder's voice?

I facilitate actions that enable stakeholders to meet their outcomes.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I facilitate tasks that are unvaried and focus almost entirely on developing lower cognitive abilities, regardless of the rigor of my stakeholders. :: I structure and execute tasks in ways that stakeholders are almost always working independently. :: I independently make all the decisions about experiences as I execute.	:: I facilitate a variety of tasks to enable the group to engage in meaningful content towards outcomes. Tasks inconsistently match the rigor of my stakeholders. :: I create opportunities for stakeholders to work independently and in fixed groups. Each stakeholder's contribution to the group may not always be effective or equal. :: I offer minimal choice and provide options for stakeholders to make decisions that are of low stakes/importance.	:: I facilitate a variety of tasks, customized for groups of stakeholders to meaningfully engage in rigorous inquiry and/or practice towards outcomes. :: I create opportunities for stakeholders to work independently and contribute equally to fixed groups. I support them to explain their thinking, offer feedback and generate ideas. :: I often offer choice and enable stakeholders to make decisions regarding how they will reach outcomes and display progress.	:: I facilitate optimal tasks that offer multiple pathways for every stakeholder to meaningfully engage in rigorous inquiry and/or practice towards outcomes. :: I create opportunities for stakeholders to work independently and contribute equally to evolving groups. I support them to explain their thinking, offer feedback and generate ideas. :: I consistently offer choice and enable stakeholders to make important, well-thought-out decisions that are critical to their development and growth.

Reflective Questions

- :: What kinds of tasks are stakeholders engaging in towards outcomes?
- :: To what extent do these offer differentiated pathways towards outcomes?
- :: What opportunities do stakeholders have to work effectively in groups?
- :: What choices are offered to stakeholders?

I check for progress at key stages and provide feedback.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I check for progress at irregular intervals. I rely almost entirely on stakeholders' questions/concerns to gauge the progress being made. :: I rarely create clarity on expected outcomes. Stakeholders often struggle to articulate the same. :: I share feedback with stakeholders at irregular intervals. I share whether they have met outcomes, but not how they may enhance the same.	:: I check for progress at regular intervals, which gives me some insight into the group's progress and tells me whether outcomes are being met. :: I create clarity on expected outcomes. Stakeholders can articulate expected outcomes but not how to self-monitor their progress towards the same. :: I share specific, regular feedback with stakeholders that provide clarity on whether outcomes are being met as well as how they may enhance the same.	:: I check for progress at regular intervals, which gives me an understanding of representative subsets of stakeholders' progress and potential breakdowns. :: I create clarity on expected outcomes and enable stakeholders to self-monitor, check their own progress, and course-correct where possible. :: I pause at regular intervals and when I observe breakdowns to provide specific feedback and clarify any misconceptions that arise.	:: I check for progress at strategic points, which gives me an understanding of the extent of every stakeholders' progress and direction to course-correct effectively. :: I create clarity on expected outcomes and enable stakeholders to self-monitor, check the extent of their progress, course correct, and receive feedback from others. I pick strategic points in execution to deconstruct breakdowns, share specific feedback, and direct the flow of the space towards clarity.
Reflective Questions :: To what extent is every stakeholder meeting outcomes? :: How do we know? :: How might we deconstruct breakdowns and course correct accordingly?

I address challenges and leverage opportunities that arise in the moment.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I view challenges as disruptions to the flow of my plan. In the face of challenging situations, I often express feeling helpless or resentful. I do not take measures to anticipate and adapt to changes in circumstances. :: I adhere to my plan regardless of the opportunities that arise in the moment.	:: I am often caught off guard by changes in circumstances. I tackle minor challenges that arise in the moment and attempt to make small modifications to execution in order to respond to them appropriately. :: I acknowledge opportunities that arise at the moment and sometimes make modifications to my plan to leverage the same.	:: I accept challenges as opportunities to grow. I anticipate challenges/ shifts in circumstances and flexibly make adjustments to my plan, altering the pacing/ tasks to best reach set outcomes. :: I effectively leverage opportunities that arise at the moment to cater to the needs of stakeholders and strengthen outcomes.	:: I welcome, value, and anticipate challenges/ shifts in circumstances. I flexibly make adjustments to my plan, altering the pacing/ content/ tasks in optimal ways to best reach set outcomes. :: I actively look for opportunities to strengthen outcomes, leveraging events that arise at the moment to cater to the needs and interests of most stakeholders.
Reflective Questions :: What is my relationship with challenge? :: How do I respond to challenges and opportunities that arise in the moment?

REFLECT

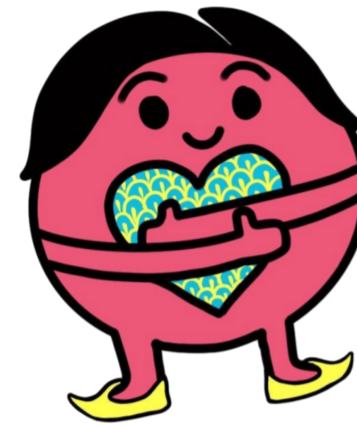

R1

I am conscious of my emotions and how my states of being are impacting my work.

R2

I analyze multiple data points to diagnose key levers impacting outcomes.

R3

I am conscious of the connection between outcomes and my leadership.

R4

I develop clear next steps to strengthen outcomes and grow.

R5

I access experiences and people that build my capability to deliver on outcomes.

I am conscious of my emotions and how my states of being are impacting my work.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I often resist, suppress, justify or apologize for my emotions. :: I struggle to regulate my emotions. My emotions manifest in behaviors that are maladaptive. :: I rely on others to take steps that will sustain my energy.	:: I am attentive to some of my emotions and display a limited ability to identify the situations/triggers that cause them. :: I can regulate my emotions and adjust my behavior to the needs of situations that are controlled or predictable. :: With support, I can identify and use coping strategies to sustain my energy when I feel it dipping.	:: I am attentive to all my emotions and can reflect authentically on the situations/triggers that cause them. :: I can process my emotions and adjust my behavior to the needs of most situations. :: I can independently leverage people and use strategies to sustain and replenish my energy when I feel it dipping.	:: I welcome and feel all my emotions, and can notice patterns in the situations and triggers that cause them. :: I can process my emotions and adjust my behavior to the needs of the situation even in emotionally charged spaces. :: I proactively leverage people and use a combination of strategies to sustain and replenish my energy through recurring practices and habits.
Reflective Questions :: What is my relationship with my emotions? How do these emotions play out in my actions? :: What strategies and people may I leverage towards my physical, emotional and mental well-being.

I analyze multiple data points to diagnose key levers impacting outcomes.

:: I collect data when asked to do so, but sometimes struggle to make sense of it or use it to inform strategic action. :: My analysis of possible causes for outcomes and key levers to shift impact lacks depth.	:: I occasionally analyze data in the aggregate to attain a basic understanding of my progress on goals set. :: My analysis considers a limited range of possible causes for outcomes and determines generic levers that create incremental shifts in outcomes for some stakeholders.	:: I frequently collate and analyze relevant qualitative and quantitative data to understand progress on almost every goal set. :: My analysis frequently moves beyond "what" to "why", considering a wide range of possible causes for outcomes and determining a few levers that will lead to a shift in outcomes for most stakeholders.	:: I consistently create succinct reports and share thoughtful insights on a comprehensive range of qualitative and quantitative data, to attain a holistic understanding of the progress. :: My analysis consistently moves beyond "what" to "why", considering a full range of possible causes for outcomes and determining the key levers that would most significantly shift outcomes for all stakeholders.
Reflective Questions :: What are the different data points and experiences I utilize to develop a clear understanding of progress? :: How thorough is my understanding of the causes underlying outcomes?

I am conscious of the connection between outcomes and my leadership.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I rarely reflect on my growth as a leader and struggle to see how it is connected to my outcomes. :: I tend to externalize shifts in outcomes to factors beyond my control. :: I am unsure if I can do anything to overcome some of the challenges I face.	:: When prompted, I reflect on my growth as a leader based on my outcomes. As a result, I can make some connections to the knowledge, skills, and mindsets that I have developed. :: I am beginning to take responsibility to contribute to shifts in outcomes. :: I view a few challenges I face, as opportunities to grow my leadership.	:: I independently reflect on my growth as a leader based on our collective outcomes. As a result, I can make clear connections to the knowledge, skills, and mindsets that I have developed. :: I take responsibility to contribute to shifts in our outcomes, occasionally starting with (transforming) myself. :: In pursuit of outcomes, I accept most challenges I face as opportunities to grow my leadership.	:: I consistently reflect on my growth as a leader based on our collective outcomes. As a result, I can articulate clear and compelling insights into my leadership and growth. :: I take radical responsibility to contribute to shifts in our outcomes, always starting with (transforming) myself. :: In pursuit of outcomes, I embrace almost all the challenges I face as opportunities to grow my leadership, and I approach them with openness and curiosity.
Reflective Questions :: What are our outcomes? :: How have I grown as a leader in pursuit of these outcomes? :: How have the challenges along the way contributed to my leadership?

I develop clear next steps to strengthen outcomes and grow.

NOVICE	BEGINNER	PROFICIENT	ADVANCED
:: I make a few adjustments to my actions based on a generic set of next steps. :: I provide feedback to stakeholders inconsistently.	:: I occasionally adjust my actions based on a generic set of next steps derived from levers impacting outcomes. :: I provide some generic feedback to stakeholders. I rarely share strategies or solicit reflections from stakeholders on how to strengthen our outcomes/ grow.	:: I consistently adjust my actions/mindsets and implement differentiated enhancements based on specific next steps derived from levers identified. :: I provide comprehensive, specific feedback to stakeholders. I engage them in constructive dialogue, towards identifying strategies for us to strengthen our outcomes and grow.	:: I strategically adjust my actions/mindsets and implement differentiated enhancements based on specific, actionable, time-bound next steps derived from key levers identified. :: I establish consistent reflection loops with stakeholders that enable constructive dialogue about our progress. I enable the co-creation of strategies for all of us to strengthen our outcomes and grow.
